

RANDOLPH KETCHUM JONES PASSED AWAY MONDAY NIGHT; HAD BEEN SEVERELY INJURED

Graduated from McGill in 1923—Was in Twenty-third Year—First Class Honors Man in Political Economy—Spoke for Conservative Party in Last Year's British Elections—Death Came as a Result of Injuries received in an Automobile Accident—Dr. Leacock's tribute.

Death has taken from McGill one of the most brilliant of her young graduates. As a result of a motor accident which occurred at Woodstock, N. B., Randolph Ketchum Jones M. A. died at half past six Monday night. He was in his twenty-third year and is survived by his parents, three brothers and five sisters. Mr. Jones was the son of the Hon. W. P. Jones, former Attorney General for New Brunswick and now president of the New Brunswick Bar Association. Randolph Ketchum Jones, who graduated from McGill with high honors in 1923 in Political Economy and this year graduated M. A., was following advanced studies in Woodstock, N. B.

One of McGill's ablest debaters, he was invited by the Conservative party to go to England to address meetings in their interests a year ago, and spoke in many of the larger cities, earning high praise from leaders of the party. Colonel L. C. M. S. Amory, now Colonial Secretary, was particularly impressed with his ability and predicted for him a bright future.

Mr. Jones died as a result of injuries received in a motor accident four miles south of the town of Woodstock, N. B. In the motor car with him was Peter Norton Griffiths, son of Sir John Norton G. Griffiths, M. P., in the British House of Commons.

BADLY HURT.

Mr. Jones had both legs broken and internal injuries and Griffiths suffered a broken shoulder and other injuries.

Sir Henry Gray, head surgeon of the Royal Victoria Hospital left for Woodstock at 7 o'clock immediately following news of the accident, the first intimation of which reached Montreal through a telegram to Dr. Stephen Leacock.

Peter Norton Griffiths, who is now a resident in Montreal, was on a visit to his friend, who had taken an active part in his father's political campaign in the election a year ago.

R. K. Jones was a native of Woodstock, and came of old United Empire Loyalist stock.

PRESIDENT OF CLUB

At McGill he won a reputation as a brilliant student and debater, and he held high office in the student body, occupying the office for one term as President of the McGill Canadian Club and taking a leading part in the McGill Debating Society. His brilliance in debate led to the invitation to take part in the election campaign in England last year in the Conservative interests.

After graduating from McGill he returned to Woodstock to study law in his father's office. Later he intended to enter politics, a career in which marked success was predicted for him.

Mr. Jones was in Montreal a few weeks ago, on his way back from Peterborough, where he attended the military camp in charge of a New Brunswick detachment. He held the rank of captain of militia.

The following tribute to Mr. Jones was made by Dr. Leacock:

For those of us who knew and admired Randolph Ketchum Jones it is hard to believe that he is gone. More than the common run of mankind he possessed a fulness of life, an energy and a bright expectancy that seemed to mark him out for higher things. One would have said that his path lay all before him. He had already set his eager feet on the ascent. But in this case death has found again its shining mark and the pathway has ended at a grave.

Randolph Jones came to McGill University some four years ago and his coming was itself a compliment and a tribute. He came to us because he hoped to find here an atmosphere and an encouragement that would correspond to the range of his own hopes and to the patriotic ideals which inspired him in his studies. He came to us because he wanted above all to study Canada and to equip himself for that participation in the destinies of the British empire which it was his earnest hope to enjoy.

From the first day in our classrooms he made his presence felt. As a scholar he took his place at once easily among the first; and outside the walls of the classroom he singled himself out as a leader of his fellows. He succeeded to student office as it were by a natural right, and he carried his dignities with the easy and winning cheerfulness of one born to them.

It was this note of cheerfulness that attracted us to Randolph Jones. He had an optimism that never failed him, a rosy outlook on the future that compelled success, and in times of adversity or hardship something stubborn in the basis of him—some under-spirit that came to him from his Loyalist ancestors—that would not let him be cast down and turned against discouragement, a front of resolution that beat it back.

It had been Jones' aim from the first that his lot in life might bring him into the arena of imperial politics. His opportunity came. His summons to England a year ago to share in the forlorn hope of the Conservative campaign of that year brought to him a sudden distinction seldom known to one twenty years his senior. He fulfilled and justified the hopes of those who had brought him over to England. Few boys of his age but a few months out of college, could do what Randolph Jones did.

literally at a day's notice, to take part in the roaring tumult of a great election; could marshal his facts and arrange his material in the broken leisure of a stormy passage of the Atlantic; and could come out before great audiences in England as lightly and as bravely as he had stood before the little debating societies of his university. It was a bold thing to undertake. I know of few boys who would have dared it; and of fewer still who would have carried their daring to achievement. Randolph Jones did it.

RETURNED SMILING.

"He returned from the overwhelming rout in which he had carried his honors, smiling and unbeaten. All the hostile votes that ever voted could have knocked no dint in the stuff of which such a boy may be made."

The successful mark that he made in his brief fight into British political life was due to no accident. It came from the fact that he brought into his political activity the driving power of a single idea—the unity and permanence of the British Empire.

McGILL POLO TEAM DEFEATED BY M.A.A.A.

Intermediates Played at M. A. A. Tank
SCORE 6 to 4

Parsons Stars For McGill and Fisk For Montreal

Although the Intermediates put up a good fight they lost, in a closely fought water polo game, to M. A. A. A. Intermediates last night. The game was fast and the result doubtful right up to the last period.

The game started with M. A. A. A. defending the deep end. In the first minute of play Fisk of Montreal scored a goal. Adams of McGill scored one a few minutes later evening up the tally just before the period ended. Power scored another goal for M. A. A. A. The period ended with M. A. A. A. ahead 2-1.

The second period was exceptionally fast and featured by some clever stops by Williams the McGill goalie. Only one point was scored this period and that by Charlton the M. A. A. A. center. Roger of M. A. A. A. was put off 1 minute for holding Parsons who was starring for McGill all through the game scored two goals in the third period. William also made some good stops this period. The third quarter ended in a tie each team having three points to its credit. In this

HISTORICAL CLUB

Miss Foster and Miss Campbell Read Papers

Lord Carteret and Champlain were the subjects of two papers which were read at the second meeting of the H. V. C. Historical Club, held on Tuesday evening at the home of the vice-president Miss Louise Fair.

The paper on Lord Carteret read by Miss J. Foster was not only a study of the man himself, but an interesting outline of the involved political situation in Europe during his period of power. Quotations from Horace Walpole and Chesterfield gave a sketch of his character. Carteret was a man of great decision and presumption, better fitted for a position similar to that of Richelieu than to be a minister in the more constitutional English government. He was born in 1690, and educated at Westminster School and Christ Church, Oxford. When he became of age he entered the House of Lords, where his desire to keep England true to the Protestant Succession and his continued interest in foreign affairs were displayed almost immediately. In politics he was a whig and came under the leader-

ASSAULT ON PIERRE AT FIVE TO-DAY

Big Crowd Expected at Jazz Tea
MUSIC AND EATS

Fred Gross' Orchestra Will Provide Music While Pierre Serves

Jazz Tea to-night at 5 o'clock—That's all the dope that is needed to fill the old Cafeteria to overflowing. The crowds that have been scrambling for places at the tea for the last weeks assure that Pierre is due to have one busy time to-night when the stampede starts.

At five o'clock the syncopated melodies of the musicians and the tempting offerings of Pierre and his merry helpers will combine to touch the inner workings of the students who are fortunate enough to grab a tray and a seat. Those who have lectures until five will not waste any time in attempting to outdistance the less harassed who may have a head start for the space in front of the railing.

The attractions served up from behind the counter will be plentiful enough for the most voracious and tasty enough for the most epicurean. But that is not all. The Union House Committee have arranged, as a novelty for the regulars and complete enjoyment of the newcomers, that an entirely new band of melody men, Fred Gross' Orchestra, will distribute the harmony and jazz.

Both together assure a well satisfied mob. Let's go—and let's go before the S. R. O. sign appears.

In Quebec the Americans sing. As they quaff the old bootleggers thing, Is it Star Spangled Banner. In patriotic manner? Mr. Jones' Not at all—they sing: "God save the King."

ship of Stanhope and Sunderland, but when Walpole came into power after the "South Sea Bubble" Carteret was made Secretary of State. He soon resigned, owing to court intrigues and was then sent to Ireland, where he became a friend of Swift. In 1730 he returned, and after Walpole's resignation he became Secretary of State for the North. During the war of the Austrian Succession, in which he opposed France, Carteret continued to lose support in England and finally resigned in 1744. He is chiefly important in history for his foreign policy and his opposition to France. In the course of her paper Miss Foster read a couple of amusing political ballads, written at the time and satirizing Carteret.

Miss Campbell's paper on Champlain had to be somewhat hurried but it was nevertheless extremely interesting giving detailed accounts of his different explorations. Champlain's first expedition was with Pontgrave to the West Indies, where he stayed for two years. He then went to Acadia where Port Royal was founded in 1604. After this, he explored the New England coast and finally ascended the St. Lawrence, and founded Quebec in 1608. Pontgrave arrived there in the following year and Champlain explored still further. He ascended the Richelieu and discovered Lake Champlain, but had to turn back owing to skirmishes with the Iroquois. In 1611 he founded a trading post at Montreal, then hearing a tale of a Northern Sea, he ascended the Ottawa. Here he discovered the Algonquin tribe but found that the story he had been told was false.

In 1690 Champlain began to build up the colony in earnest, but had many difficulties, as the inhabitants were far traders and the settlement had to be supported by supplies from France.

Meanwhile an English colony had been founded at Plymouth, a sharp contrast to New France in religion, government and ability to support itself. In 1629 the French colony surrendered to Admiral Kirke after the provision fleet had been captured, but it was soon returned to France through the efforts of Champlain. Champlain died in 1635, and with his death ended the first period in the history of New France.

At the conclusion of her paper, Miss Campbell told of the first mass said at Saint Ann Recollet, this account was found in an urn discovered in an ancient chip tree, which was cut down in 1867.

After the papers had been read, arrangements were made about coming meetings, and the very enjoyable evening was concluded with refreshments.

TWO PAPERS DELIVERED AT LIT. MEETING

"Democracy and Literature" Is Subject
FIRST MEETING

Mr. Jones and Mr. Cohen Were The Speakers Discussion Held After

"Democracy and Literature" formed the subject of two papers read before the Literary and Debating Society last night. This was the Society's first meeting this year and was held in Strathcona Hall; there were about fifteen members present and proceedings began at 8.15.

Bert Wells, president of the "Lit.", took the chair and said that he was very pleased with the number present. He stated that it was not the Society's policy to encourage large meetings at the outset and then have the attendance divide down; they would rather have 25 or 30 interested members and hold monthly meetings. Reference was made to the lack of activity since the War. In order to get going again the Executive decided to hold meetings, read papers and hold discussions afterwards. Last night's papers were the first read in the last ten years. Mr. Wells emphasized the fact that the "Lit." wanted to cater, not only to Arts and Law, but to all the Faculties, and hoped to have papers read by men from Science and Commerce before long.

In concluding his remarks the president referred to the death of R. K. Jones, who was probably best known in McGill through his work in Mack Parliament. It was moved by Mr. Forsey, and seconded by Mr. James, that a letter be sent to Mr. Jones' family expressing the Society's condolence.

In treating the subject of "Democracy and Literature" Mr. Jones' paper dealt with the literary side while Mr. Cohen's considered the question of political democracy.

Mr. Jones opened by stating that all literature has to do with the life of man and the planet on which he lives. The literature of the day is different voices of man. In history produced by a combination of the drama and poetry, man is seen as a fighter; the world about him consists of forces constantly trying to demolish him while he is able to surmount them through his superior intelligence. He is also seen as a lover; the speaker cited Shakespeare, amongst others, in this respect. Similarly, democracy is concerned wholly with man and his life. Literature fosters and expresses the spirit which lies at the heart of democracy.

Mr. Jones then elaborated on the effect of literature in the Industrial Revolution. The revolution was traced from its start, in the invention of the "spinning jenny," etc., to the centering of manufacturing industries in cities and the consequent sordid and wretched conditions of the workers. Thus within 50 years, England changed from Medieval to modern conditions.

Literature played its part in remedying the conditions caused by the Industrial Revolution; the pens of many writers revealed to England the horrible existence that these factory workers were forced to live. In concluding, Mr. Jones made reference to the works of Shaw, Wells and Galsworthy in voicing the need of democracy.

Mr. Cohen stated that he would deal with political, rather than social, democracy. He said that the definition of democracy as "government of the people, by the people and for the people" was a rhetorical one and he preferred to define it as that system whereby the people controls the acts

SENIORS GO INTO FINAL ENCOUNTER

Snyder And His 'Varsity Men Here Saturday
AT STADIUM

Rugby Squad had Signal and Srimmage Practice Yesterday

The seniors went through a snappy signal practice and hard scrimmage workout at the Stadium yesterday in preparation for Saturday's final intercollegiate game with the Blue and White squad from Toronto.

Hughes was given a rest, while Hanna was also taken out for a time and allowed to take it easy. Captain "Bones" Little who had not entered into the previous day's practice was back in his old position and at his old form again. The backfield showed up exceptionally well, while the line plays were run off smoothly and with speed.

Snyder and his team-mates, after their great stand and near-victory in Saturday's battle with the Tri-colour, are going to be a hard outfit to hold but the Red and White have already displayed this season their strength on the defensive, while their showing against M. A. A. A. on Thanksgiving Day at least proved that their offensive is good and that they have a diversity of attack at their command.

At full strength and going as they were going in that last intercollegiate contest at the Stadium, the game against Queen's, McGill stands every chance in the world of coming out on top next Saturday, and by so doing drawing up alongside Toronto in the final standings of the intercollegiate series, tied for second place.

STANSTEAD SQUAD WILL BATTLE ARTS

Errol Amaron's Rugbyists Have Good Record

On Saturday morning the Arts Rugby squad will battle with Stanstead College in an exhibition game on the Campus. Stanstead has a strong team this year and has succeeded in beating Bishop's College and several other teams. The Methodist squad is this year under the direction of Errol Amaron who has done much in rounding the men into a smooth working machine. "Holy" Amaron who last year played on Macdonald College team is expected to play for the Wesleyans and should prove a very effective man against the heavy Arts team. Amaron was one of the best players on the Argie team last year and has lost none of his prowess. While the Arts team did not make a very good showing in the Interfaculty League this year, it is expected that they will have strengthened the weak places and be in good trim for Saturday's game. Yesterday's practice was called off on account of the wet weather but the plays should be working smoothly at to day's practice Arts players are reminded that only two days remain before the game and every one is expected to be on hand to-day.

of its government; the success of democracy is thus measured by the extent of this control. Various types of government were cited, including despotism and bureaucracy and their evils explained. In contrast to these, democracy swept away all class distinctions.

How do the people control the government? The speaker dealt with this very thoroughly. The government consists of the Legislature, for making the laws, and the Executive, for enforcing these laws. The people first gain control of the Legislature and then the Executive, this being the final step in the establishment of democracy.

period Fisk got into a little trouble with his McGill opponent and was sent out of the water for one minute. Keefe scored one for M. A. A. A. at the beginning of the last period and a minute later Parsons evened up the score. Although McGill fought hard they were defending the deep end this time so were a bit out of luck. Fisk who had been the feature for M. A. A. A. scored two goals before the time was called thus winning the game for M. A. A. A. by a score of 6 to 4.

After this game the M. A. A. A. put in a game between their two senior teams the Red and the Blues. This was nowhere near as close as the McGill game, the Blues winning this 6 to 1.

There was a very small audience at the game and few supporters for McGill. It would seem that the women are more interested in swimming than men because more than half of the gallery were of that species.

The line up for the McGill game was as follows:

McGill	M. A. A. A.
Center	Center
Moore	Charlton
Forward	Forward
Adams	Power
MacLean	Reeves
Defense	Defense
Parsons	Rogers
Munro	Fisk
Goal	Goal
Williams	Carlin

To him all other plans and policies were subordinate to that and must be measured by that alone. Here alone was the test in what was wise or fool.

CHORAL SOCIETY SECURES DIRECTOR

Services of Mr. Clapperton Assured New Organization

Under the leadership of Mr. Walter Clapperton, the newly formed Choral Society which replaces the Glee Club of former years, will get under way to-night when it meets at 7.30 p. m. in the Conservatorium of Music, on Sherbrooke St.

With its membership enlarged so as to include both men and women, a much broader scope is given the Society and the prospects for this reason look very bright. Several students have signified their intention of joining the club, but there is still room for a great many more—especially men—and any student who is interested is asked to take this as a personal invitation to join the Society and to attend the first practice this evening. Weekly rehearsals will be held from now until about the middle of February.

The Society is fortunate in having such a well-known musician and choir leader as Mr. Clapperton to conduct the singing who is on the staff of the Faculty of Music and is also organist of one of the leading churches of this city. Under his able leadership the success of the club is practically assured.

Details of the music to be undertaken by the club cannot be given at this date, but several good numbers have been procured and everything is ready to proceed with the year's programme without further delay.

WOULD NOT GIVE UP COLLEGE LIFE FOR STAGE CAREER

Picture yourself in one of the biggest musical reviews in the country with your name on all dramatic pages. Betty Kent, of Ohio State University did, and then decided that her college education was more valuable at present.

Last season when the Greenwich Village Follies played at the Hartman Theatre, Miss Kent was given the opportunity for which most girls long. After thinking it over, she decided to turn down the offer for her education at Ohio State.

At the time the Follies were here, Kid Randall, reputed one of the best male dancers on the stage, saw Miss Kent at the Sands Studio of Dancing. Much impressed by her dancing, he told her he thought he would be able to get her a part in the show.

The next week, when the show played in Dayton, Miss Kent received a telegram asking her to accept a part in the Follies. After thinking the offer over she made her negative decision. While here Mr. Randall had taught her the Spanish Tango and a few other stage dances.

"FROM SOUP TO NUTS", EVERYTHING FOR SALE AT OHIO STATE U.

"Everything from soup to nuts." The reference isn't the advertising slogan of Main Street's biggest department store or the boast of the butcher and grocer.

It's the actual fact of the materials which have been ordered through the office of Ray M. Royer, Ohio University purchasing agent, in the 12 years of the department's existence on the campus.

The soup is Campbell's and is ordered by the crate for the dormitories and hospitals. The nuts are walnuts and are the only requisition which comes through the department for altruistic reasons. The janitor of Orton Hall feeds them to the squirrels. He spreads the walnuts over the ground in back of Orton Hall during the cold weather, using about a bag a week for his pets.

But the soup and nuts are just the beginning and end of the long list which Royer approves, orders, and inspects upon arrival.

"TRUST THE STUDENT"

The Dean of Arts in his discerning review of conditions affecting the academic work within the Faculty of which he is head, dismisses the problem of student activities by affirming his faith in the student body to deal intelligently with a question which naturally modifies to a greater or lesser degree the subjects of education embodied in the curriculum. But further, one senses in his analysis a keen appreciation of the function of student activities and a sympathetic understanding of the basic principles underlying their origin and the sentiments which prompt their continuance.

The increasing ramification of our student organizations bids fair sooner or later to precipitate a climax, when we might well be confronted with the delicate task of rebuilding a structure which has taken years and infinite patience to erect. To countenance the abolishment of student activities is unthinkable. They are almost unanimously conceded to be character builders, through the administrative, self-reliant and initiative traits which they promote and develop. Further they are practically the embodiment of our social instincts and certainly they are the present manifestation of the very ideals which a broader education must needs inculcate into a man if it is to make him a true and better citizen.

We may dismiss as unimportant to the upbuilding of our major organizations the strictly recreational features which are the sine qua non of minor clubs and of some intra-mural societies. But our Students' Society, our Union, our more important Sports, our Press; none of these would have attained their present stage of perfection without the stimulus of devotion to Alma Mater which underlies them all. Each individual feels that in contributing his mite to the work of strengthening the ties among the body of students, he is in a sense discharging part of his debt to his college.

He has done so in the past, sometimes at no little sacrifice of academic standing, sometimes at a severe tax upon his physical capacities, and even in some instances at some personal financial outlay. Our perfected system is already taxing executives to the limit. It is becoming a physical impossibility for a good many capable students to discharge to their own satisfaction and with full justice to their charge, the demands made upon their time and energy by the higher posts in our societies. Have we perfected something which we cannot control? will the economic law of Supply and Demand step in and call a halt to further progress because managing services are lacking?

Dr. Ira Mackay, from intimate acquaintance with the effects of student self-government, is willing to "trust the student" to find a solution. We must and we can master the situation without retrogressing if we will spread the details of administration among larger staffs, relieving officials of all but the actual task of directing. For this two things are necessary: many students who are not now lending a hand can put their shoulder to the wheel, and executive officials must be willing and ready to delegate to subordinates a greater proportion of responsibility and accord them commensurate recognition of their services.

CONDENSED COMMENT

During the past few months death has taken a heavy toll of McGill men. Again, with sincere regret, we record the passing of a graduate. Randolph K. Jones, whose future eminence as a leader of men seemed to be assured. Coming from that section of Canada which has reared more than its share of leaders in thought and action, R. K. Jones on entering McGill soon evinced a courage and confidence in discharging the duties incumbent upon an executive head that brought him to the forefront among his fellow students. In four years as a student in Arts he gained an enviable record for achievement. His cheerfulness in the face of difficulties, his brilliance as an orator, his high academic standing and his breadth of talent in general pointed to a career that would place him in the ranks of the most illustrious graduates of McGill.

R.V.C. '26—2 p.m.

R.V.C. '27—3 p.m.

R.V.C. '28—4 p.m.

Everybody turn out, as there are only about three more practices before the inter-year games begin.

McGILL RIFLE ASSOCIATION

Will all those who have rifles out please return them at once to the Janitor of the Arts Building.

SOCCER.

The following men have been chosen to represent McGill in the Inter-collegiate game at Kingston on Nov. 5. Davidson, Cave, Stephenson, Glavando, Archdale, Helwig, Kolland, Scott, Seaton, Moffatt and Balleney.

The sport papers have requested a picture of the Intercollegiate team, and this will be taken prior to the practice this afternoon on the campus at 3 o'clock. In addition to the above mentioned men, the members of the second eleven are requested to be present at the work-out, so that their picture may be taken also, and in order to give the seniors one good practice before their final endeavour to bring home the Championship. Every man is requested to be on time.

CHEMICAL INDUSTRY CLUB.

The meeting of the Club which was postponed on Tuesday afternoon will be held this afternoon at 5 p.m. in Room 33 of the Macdonald Chemistry Building. A. Granik, Chem. Eng. '25, will speak on "Illuminating Gas Production." The Executive would like to see a full attendance of members and those interested in Chemistry.

Noah Webster had the right idea about the word "Chum"—"a room mate at college or university—an old and well-liked friend." He probably had Old Chum Tobacco in mind when he wrote this definition. Perhaps it helped him frame it.

BANQUET TO THEOLOGIAN NEWCOMERS

Armistice Day Reception For Diocesan Students

FROSH INITIATED
Many Toasts Were Given and Prominent Speakers Were Heard

On Tuesday evening November 11th the Students of the Diocesan College held their Annual Freshmen Banquet. Preparations were in evidence for several days previous and the keen Sophomores were insistent that a pleasant and profitable evening would be spent. The Dining Hall was tastefully arranged with appropriate Armistice decorations and reflected great credit upon the Lady Superintendent Mrs. Hicks.

Promptly at 7.30 p. m. were found eager students and prominent guests seated at the festive table. Admiration of the candles many varied conversations were indulged in and one could hear "Memories of the past" being recalled. The Freshmen, too, were talked and some wondered what all this array meant. Soon they were to discover what this event fore-shadowed.

Mr. W. S. Hatcher B. A., President of the Students' Society occupied the chair and performed his duties in a most efficient manner. The first toast was to the King immediately followed by a "Silent toast" for those who gave their all in the Great War of 1914-1918.

The toast to the Church was proposed by Mr. A. Radmore B. A., and was responded to by the Lord Bishop of the Diocese, Bishop Parthing enumerated several characteristics of

FIFTY OUT WITH INTERMEDIATES

Coach Moore Shows Basketballers Good points

Fifty men trotted on the floor of Moisson's Hall last night at five when the practice for the Intermediate Basketballers was called.

Coach Moore opened proceedings with a few brief instructions including some important "don'ts" for general playing, designed to help the players.

The squad, divided into three sections, ran through a short, snappy practice on passing, dribbling and controlling the ball after sharp turns. Sections of five spent a few minutes doing team work up and down the floor with short, sharp passes under the baskets. As a windup, temporary teams were numbered off and put through short but strenuous workouts with particular attention to team play.

The coach impressed on the men the importance of working the ball into the correct position before effective shooting could be done. Spectacular points might occasionally be made from outside or from hasty tries directly under the ring, but such things are exceptional. Lastly, every man or the team must be a worker.

Good material was in evidence with a considerable percentage of first year men, several of who will, in time, undoubtedly work their way through to the seniors.

POOR ATTENDANCE AT BAND PRACTICE

Important That All Members Turn Out Friday

The Rooters' band, under the leadership of Bob Logan assembled at the Union Ball Room last night for practice. The delinquency of several of the members was readily apparent and the attendance was somewhat of a discouragement to the leader. Those present were given an opportunity to learn the new marches and songs which will be played at Saturday's game.

On Friday at five o'clock the last practice will be held. Bandmaster Gagneur will be present to help this preparation for the McGill-Varsity game. He has arranged some more McGill songs and has procured "Colonel Bagey's March" and another number. A call is made for the following men who were absent at Wednesday's practice—Code, H; Persk, Page, Holmes, Ayers, Fowler, Caron, Synerwald, Call, Monk and Shaefer.

The Rooters' band made a splendid showing at the games this season, with the one exception of the M.A.-A.A.-McGill game last Monday, when they were sorely missed. The performance, both at the home games and at Kingston have not been surpassed in the annals of the rooters' band's existence.

Saturday's game is the last inter-collegiate fixture for the year. The band will march from the Union to the Stadium and must be at full strength. Let us keep up the good work already begun. Then, everybody out for practice on Friday at 5 p.m.

the Church and called attention to her vast and glorious Mission in the world. His Lordship in a most eloquent manner welcomed the Freshmen and imparted to them much sound counsel. Mr. Richard Fander Arts '28 proposed the toast to the Faculty and the Board of Governors. It was evident that the Faculty's Scholarship and ability were recognized by the manner in which the students body received references to their learned Principal and his colleagues. The Dean of Residence Canon Albert Smith, Assistant professor in the Dept. of Semitics McGill University replied on behalf of the Faculty and the genial Principal responded for the Board of Governors.

The Alumni—that body of some 130 men who have gone forth from these walls to work in the Master's vineyard was toasted in a very appealing manner by R. C. (Dick) Brown Arts '26 and Rev'd H. Jekill suitably replied. The chairman then in a most interesting and humorous manner toasted, if not nearly roasted, the Freshmen. Their many weak points were elaborated upon and a few good ones elicited commendation from the President. In concluding his toast Mr. Hatcher gave some sound advice. Gordon Addie Arts '28 responded on behalf of the Freshmen and showed some ability as a speaker. The first part of the programme concluded with the McGill yell resounding throughout the building.

Soon after the curtain was raised in the Convocation Hall and a different scene was in evidence. The seniors in all solemnity assisted the President in the discharge of his arduous duties, with candles flickering and to the strains of weird oriental music. The Freshmen were initiated into the mysteries of this Sanctum Sanctorum. A short programme consisted of solos, choruses, recitations and pianoforte selections was effectively rendered and much "latent" talent was observed.

About midnight the strains of "God Save the King" were enthusiastically sung followed by the McGill yell and those verdant Freshies of some five weeks residence in the Diocesan College are now members of Ye Ancient Order of Theologs.

One day a man in a show window stood up and said: "I will tell any young man the name of his future wife."

A bright young man stood up. Showman: "What's your name?" Young fellow: "It is Brown."

Showman: "The name of your wife will be Mrs. Brown."—Exchange.

WRESTLING IS NOW WELL UNDERWAY

Wrestlers to go to Annapolis With Boxers

That the art of wrestling has a great following at McGill University was evidenced by the large turnout at the practice in Strathcona Hall yesterday afternoon. Nevertheless there is plenty of room for more particularly in the heavyweight class.

It has been arranged that the winners of matches in the intercollegiate meet this year accompany the boxers when they go down to Annapolis, this ought to be quite an inducement to many to turn out.

No one need have any fear of getting hurt at these practices as all one does is to get good strenuous exercise. Wrestling is an excellent exercise, and for anyone wishing exertion can find no better medium.

There are splendid opportunities for heavy men and they should not let old McGill down in this branch of sport. Practices are held in Strathcona Hall on Mondays and Wednesdays at 5 P. M.

GREAT TRIBUTE TO SOCCER CLUB

Clean Playing Commented Upon by Referee

Mr. Henderson Secretary-treasurer of the Quebec Football Referee Association and Referee for all McGill Soccer games sent the following letter to the McGill Soccer team: It is one of the greatest tributes paid to the Soccer team and McGill Athletics and shows the regard in which they are held by outsiders.

Montreal, Nov. 11th, 1924.
Mr. Schleifer,
Secretary,
McGill University Soccer Team.

Dear Sir:—
Now that the McGill Soccer Team has got through its games preparatory to the clash with Varsity at Toronto on Saturday next, I want to take the opportunity of extending my hearty congratulations on the excellence of their performances, and to express my belief that provided the Eleven put up the same brand of soccer in Toronto to that they have been showing in Montreal, they will win handsomely.

It has been my good fortune and pleasure to referee each of the half-dozen games played. The record is as follows:—

This is very excellent showing. McGill have won every game except one. Nor were the teams they met in any sense weaklings. In point of fact the last three games were against teams occupying high standing in the premier section of the Montreal League. McGill have proved themselves to be the equal of the best the Province of Quebec Football Association can produce.

One cannot of course gauge the strength of the Toronto Varsity team since they are not allowed to participate in contests with clubs attached to the Toronto and Districts Football Association. That they will need to be at least the equal of the Toronto senior clubs, however, if they are to stand against McGill, is an established fact. Whether they are thus capable remains to be seen. I have confidence that the McGill boys will pull through and come out of the big game with the big end of the score.

May I be permitted to express an opinion concerning your team. McGill are strong fore and aft. The defence is good. You are fortunate in having the choice of more than one clever goal keeper. I have seen three custodians in action, either one of whom is

Weather And Misunderstanding Cause Eliminations To Fail

The elimination Harrier race, held yesterday afternoon to choose the McGill representatives in the Dunlop Road race on November 22nd, failed because of the inclement weather and confusion about the time of starting. At four-thirty, the appointed hour, only some five or six runners were in uniform, and after a lengthy wait, these were still the only competitors.

The route followed was the short course, a distance of about three and a half miles. The time was poor as the muddy roads made fast going impossible. The Dunlop race, which is held under the auspices of the North Branch Y. M. C. A., allows a team of five or six men to enter, only four runners counting in the total points.

The probable McGill competitors will be Kerr, Brain, Airey, Clement Brodie, with perhaps one or two others.

worthy a place on the team. Anything that they may lack in individual brilliance is more than made up in their perfect understanding of one another's play. The first essential in a full-back is safety, and your full-backs play safe.

The halves are very capable and of the highest class. They can be thoroughly relied upon to tackle fearlessly every onslaught and to assist their forwards when not engaged in a defence. I like that middle line immensely, and they have much to do with the success of the team.

Forward, the quintette are an effective combination. The inside trio are hard to dispossess. They are strong and clever dribblers. Know how to draw the defense, have the short low pass to a colleague down to perfection and can shoot. They are physically ideal for the positions they occupy. Light forwards are often the bane of a team, and in this regard you have a big advantage. The outside wing men are both speedy and sturdy and are clever enough to be relied upon generally to get the better on an opposing half. Their one fault (and it is a very noticeable fault) is their seeing unwillingness to middle the ball. If, instead of trying to effect the well-nigh impossible, to score by shooting at goal from the wing, they would put the ball back and low to the inside forwards, goals would certainly accrue more often than they do. By this method full advantage would be taken men undoubtedly possess. Some of the of the outstanding ability the inside prospect McGill team will go far in soccer or I am no judge. The whole team is well above the average.

I cannot close without paying tribute to the exceeding cleanliness of the McGill men in all their games. The first game played, that against the R. C. M. P., was notable for something I had never before experienced in all my over thirty years of soccer. I have heard of a game without a foul, but never saw such a game until McGill played the Mounted Police. On that occasion there was not a single foul perpetrated by either side. It deserves to be recorded and to go down in history.

As a matter of fact, I did not have to give a free kick against McGill for infraction of law in any one of the first four games in which they participated, and if they were penalized in the last two games, as they were, it was because of technicalities and not for deliberate breaches of the rules. "The cleanest game I ever saw in my life," was the verdict of spectators at the conclusion of the game against Nomads at Beaumont park. It was a good testimony to the sportsmanship of McGill. Such soccer merits success.

At first thought it seemed a pity that McGill should have won all their games until it came to the last one played. But the fact is that in meeting the Highlanders on Saturday afternoon and Canadian Vickers on Monday morning they attempted too great a task. Vickers were the stronger team. The game with the Highlanders developed into a strenuous struggle, in which a good many hard knocks were given and taken on both sides. McGill were feeling the effects of this on Monday morning. Vickers on the

RADIO CLUB PLANS TRIP TO LA PRESSE

The announcement that a trip to station CKAC, La Presse Building had been arranged for next Wednesday afternoon was one of the features of a meeting of the Radio Association which was held in the Physic building yesterday. This announcement met with the general approval of those present, since at the last trip to the Marconi station, they had acquired some very interesting and useful information. It is expected that at the forthcoming visit, a no less interesting time will be had; and it is urged that all the members should avail themselves of this opportunity to become acquainted with the details of broadcasting.

A very good suggestion was brought forward during the meeting, namely, that each member who had constructed his own set, should bring it to the club, and give a short talk to the members about it. This suggestion was greeted with enthusiasm, and no doubt will help to enliven the future meetings of the Club.

It was announced that with the help of the McGill Music Club, a concert will be broadcasted from station IOAU which is M. J. L. Miller's private broadcasting station. Mr. Miller, a past member of the Radio Association, has generously offered the use of his station to the Club.

When the preliminary work of the meeting had been disposed with Mr. Young, who is an expert commercial operator, gave the members an interesting lesson on the code. He stressed the point that only by constant practice may the code be fully mastered, even if it is not as difficult as it seems.

Mr. Weir, the president of the Association, occupied the chair and asked for nominations for a new secretary. Mr. Young who occupied that office, has resigned owing to other pressing duties. The absence of a quorum prevented the election of a new officer and the president, therefore, appointed Mr. Milligan, to fill the vacancy until a new secretary was elected.

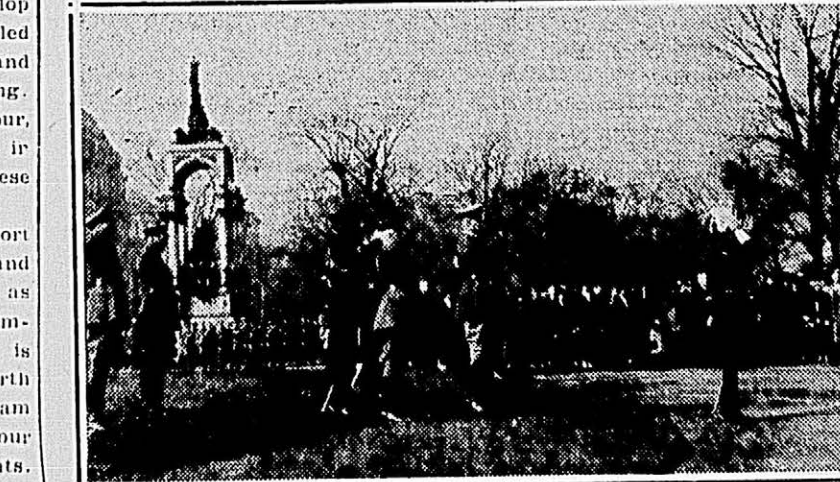

other hand had rested up Saturday so that they were fresh for the contest and just that difference, it seems to me, accounted for McGill's defeat.

So you may go into the game with Varsity at Toronto on Saturday next with confidence—confidence in the men that you put on the field to represent McGill, that they will do their best, and that their best should be good enough to capture the laurels. And confident in this also—that Montreal Soccerdom wishes you unequalled and continued success.

Personally, I am proud to have shared in even a small way in your games and in your success. It will always be a most pleasant memory.

Sincerely yours,

WE might say, "Old Squire is a tobacco you will all like. You never tasted a tobacco so good." But as a man's tobacco taste is a personal and private matter, we say instead, "Old Squire is a burley tobacco, with an individual taste and fragrance."

It is certainly a mild and sweet tobacco—so smooth that it never will burn your tongue.

Many men like it immensely, smoke it constantly and swear it's the best tobacco made.

BASKETBALL SQUAD GETTING INTO FORM

Eddie Crain Will Coach Intermediate A. Team

The senior basketball squad held a fast workout last night in the M. H. S. gym under Coach Van Wagner. The players are being gradually rounded into shape and the coach is trying to get them into condition as soon as possible.

The men were first put through a short shooting practice and then were given some passing and shooting followed by a little work on the pivot. The practice ended up with a snappy scrimmage on the floor in which the men showed up quite well. Next week, when the men who are playing football now, are out in uniform, the work out will begin in earnest. There are several men of known ability who have not yet joined the squad and these are bound to strengthen the team a lot.

It is now definitely known that Eddie Crain will coach the Intermediate A team this year. Crain was a guard on the McGill teams of '22 that won the Dominion title, and paired with Errol Amerson was considered one of the best defenses in Canadian basketball. He knows the game well and will undoubtedly prove a valuable asset to the coaches.

STUDENTS MUST WORK IS OPINION OF DEAN

College students should be kept for their achievement, so said Dr. Seashore, the highest natural level Carl Emil Seashore, professor of psychology and dean of the graduate school at the University of Iowa, in a round table conference that he held with the members of the University faculty Monday afternoon. Dr. Seashore is connected with the national research council of the country gathering data on the problem of discovering the exceptional student, and seeing that their talents are more fully developed.

In determining the most fitting students, Dr. Seashore, in his talk said that what were known as placement examinations were used with much success in many institutions. Under this method, the freshman when he first enters the college is given two sets of examinations in all fundamental subjects. One of these test his preparation and the other his aptitude for the subject. The marking of the questions is a comparatively simple matter and of ish good or bad, patriotic and disastrous. It was the ideal of the United Empire Loyalists which animated their descendant; the ideal on which was founded the province from which he sprang; the ideal which must always be as the rock on which our political future is upbuilt.

The bright hopes that had surrounded the career of Randolph Jones have been eclipsed in sorrow. The full expectation can never be realized. But this much remains. In the long roll of graduates whose memory honors and animates our University the name of Randolph Ketcham Jones shall find at once a cherished place. It is fit to be counted among the best, nor is it exaggeration or rhetoric to say that the memory of this boy's eager and earnest life, his winning cheerfulness and his deep faith in his political ideal, will remain as an abiding inspiration of those who sorrow at his death.

STEPHEN LEACOCK.

The following editorial, paying tribute to the late Mr. Jones appeared in the Montreal Star of yesterday's date.

R. K. JONES.

The blind chance of an automobile accident has robbed Canada of a young man of great promise. It is not often that one so fresh from academic halls has given such convincing evidence that his country might look to him in the future for invaluable service. Little more than a boy in years, he had already become a factor—not only in our life—but in the tragic conflicts of the Motherland.

"Arkay" was a native orator of quite unusual power. He was immensely popular with his associates and commanded the confidence of his professors. He was on fire with patriotic fervor and believed—above all things—in the brilliant future of this Dominion as an integral part of the British Empire. We can ill spare young Canadians of this quality. McGill has launched no more promising a graduate.

fers a very accurate way to rate the student, according to their aptitude and to their preparation. In most institutions these consist of three definite sections, one for the fast worker who has had plenty of preparation and another for the one having poor training or not willing to work. Those in the middle class from these two extremes are the average student's. According to Dr. Seashore, the system so far has worked out favorably; the poor worker is encouraged to do better, and when he has advanced sufficiently he is placed in a high section. Those not measuring up to the standards set for them by the placement examinations are put on a lower rating.

That educators must remember what are termed the more humble occupations also were stressed by Dr. Seashore. He said that the higher educational institutions of today are devoting too much of their time to the professions demanding an academic course. He said that this is a dangerous limit of capacity for doing college work. Too many, he believes are being trained for the so-called higher professions while the work is in as much need of other workers. He recommended that the colleges give certificates of fitness to perform certain work to those leaving at the end of a two year course.

More discrimination in allowing high school students to go to college was also urged by Dr. Seashore. He said that a survey now in progress indicated that not only the good high school students go on to college but also an even number of those not fitted for higher education.

The small amount of legislation administered by the early governments was explained by the fact that they were then in an era of status and conditions were practically constant. On the other hand, we are now in an era of change and legislation is essential, as new conditions cause new laws to become necessary. Thus the older governments merely kept order and the people did not worry very much about who administered the law.

The Industrial Revolution profoundly affected the economic and social life of the time and the people's conception of the government underwent a change; the government was expected to take cognizance of these

QUEEN'S WILL PLAY TIGERS IN TORONTO

Eastern Dominion Rugby Semi-Finals Nov. 22

The Queen's Rugby Squad, Inter-collegiate Champions, have accepted an offer from the Hamilton Rugby Club to play in the semi-finals of the Eastern Dominion Championship on Saturday Nov. 22nd.

It has been announced that the game will be played in Toronto at the Varsity Stadium.

Arrangements have been made whereby $3,000 will be turned over to the Queen's Athletic Association each team donating $1,500, for the purpose of sending the Queen's Students to Toronto to see the game. The decision is most satisfactory, and is heartily supported by everyone at Queen's.

It was also announced that "Red" McKelvey would be unable to play in the game owing to an injury to his knee incurred in the game with 'Varsity last week. If Queen's win they will play against Beaches and McKelvey may be able to participate in this.

Practices were resumed on Wednesday when Coach Hughes put the team through a light workout, and a full practice yesterday. The team is now resting up until Tuesday.

The officials for the game will be chosen next week.

changes and make legislation accordingly. Consequently, in 1830 and 1848, the people looked upon the government as being of supreme importance.

The movement of democracy has always been more successful in times of peace—it has made rapid progress during the past 100 years. Democracy will not go well with militarism; this accounts for its failure in Germany and Russia. Mr. Cohen then stated that the virtue of democracy is that it is an impersonal form of government and that, in his opinion, it is the most logical, moral and just form.

One of the characteristics of Democracy is the "rule of the majority"; the speaker was prepared to admit that this could, and has been, abused, but insisted that the "tyranny of the majority" was not as bad as the "tyranny of the minority." Contrary to

"To the Victor, the Spoils"

The contest gains in zest when it is known that the victor's trophy is to be one of Mappin & Webb's famous designs.

In addition to a large stock of the well known, established designs in cups, shields, medals and spoons, we also offer many trophies specially designed in our own workshops and exclusive to us. These are suitable for all branches of sport.

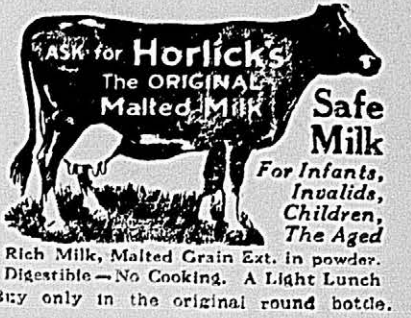

Again—Mappin & Webb are prepared to design and execute special trophies to order. Sketches for these will be cheerfully submitted without charge.

some people's statements, great men still have their place in democracy but as leaders, in stead of masters.

Democracy is derided by some people whose expectations have not been realized; it is not perfect, but often falls where any kind of government would fail.

These papers were followed by a lively discussion on the topics considered.
